

Kentucky Refugee Ministries, Louisville
Rise Up Educational Access Coordinator (full-time)

Summary

As part of the Family and Youth Services staff, the Rise Up Educational Access Coordinator will provide educational case management services and implement college and career readiness and other out-of-school-time programming for youth and young adult refugees and immigrants, including the Rise Up Mentor Program. The individual in this role will work collaboratively with the Rise Up Educational Access Coordinator on program planning and management. Responsibilities include meeting with young adults on an ongoing basis, creating individualized client case plans, and equipping them to access available community resources. Additionally this role involves co-coordinating the Rise Up Mentor Program and planning and implementing workshops, college visits, and other out-of-school time programming that will empower clients to pursue their academic and vocational goals while supporting their psychosocial development.

Kentucky Refugee Ministries (KRM) Family and Youth Services Program works with approximately 100-150 high-school-aged youth and young adults each year. Clients have varying levels of English proficiency—some speaking little or no English—and diverse educational and cultural backgrounds. Once in Louisville, young adults are eager for guidance in pursuing additional education. Most young adults face barriers that prevent them from accessing the education that they seek. Some of these barriers are a lack of knowledge and understanding of available academic services. Another barrier is the cost of education and the misperception that higher education is unaffordable. They also have financial needs that require them to work. The role of the Rise Up Educational Access Coordinator is to help educate, advocate, and encourage young adults as they overcome these barriers. The Rise Up Program provides comprehensive educational and vocational support services for those ages 15-24 years old as well as engagement in youth/youth adult programming throughout the year. These services include educational case management, college and vocational training exploration, educational workshops, and out-of-school-time programming. Lastly, the Rise Up Educational Access Coordinator manages a mentorship program serving these youth. The Rise Up Mentorship Program matches KRM volunteers with teen and young adult clients to work collaboratively in meeting their educational, vocational, and social emotional goals. The goal of the program is to promote positive civic and social engagement and support individual educational and vocational attainment while providing opportunities for youth to connect and learn together.

Other Rise Up out-of-school-time programming includes the following offerings: Super College and Career Readiness Program, Teen Connect Program, and the Teen Boost Summer Program. The Super College and Career Readiness Program is a monthly opportunity for students to engage with a local college, university or vocational education provider on a campus tour, learn about the application process, and become more acquainted with college expectations and norms through workshops and educational activities that support their transition from high school to secondary education. The Teen Connect Program is a monthly event, designed to provide youth and young adult students space to connect and build community through games, educational activities, and arts engagement. The Teen Boost Summer Program is a six-week academic and psychosocial program for high school-aged refugee students that provides a safe environment for youth to sustain and advance their language acquisition and a space for them to build meaningful community with peers and educators.
