

Kentucky Refugee Ministries (Louisville)
ESL & Cultural Orientation Instructor
Full-time, 40 hours/week

Summary

In the English language training program at Kentucky Refugee Ministries, students learn language skills that will assist them in navigating daily life in the US, including the consignment and retention of employment, interactions with school and local institutions, and those culturally rooted tasks which lay a foundation for continuing English language acquisition. Prior to enrollment, students' proficiency is assessed, and they are placed in classes based on their proficiency level. All classes are rolling enrollment and contain students from a diverse range of countries and languages.

Currently, KRM offers classes on-site at the KRM office located in the Highlands. We also offer classes located at the Americana Community Center in the Beechmont area of Louisville. This role would be providing instruction split between both locales.

The ESL Instructor will provide interactive, student-centered ESL instruction with an emphasis on spoken English. The ESL curriculum will be based on functional English related to a sequence of life-skills topics. There are existing curriculum materials, but ESL instructors are expected to build their own class specific lesson plans based on the topics/thematic units of the overarching curriculum. In addition to teaching, this position involves planning and developing curriculum elements, formative assessments, and reporting student attendance.

Instructors will connect with other teachers, the Adult Education Manager, and case management staff to provide updates on student attendance, to refer students for various assistance and services, and to support long term growth and cultural navigation.

Cultural Orientation. One day a week, currently on Wednesday mornings, KRM's ESL staff, with the use of bilingual interpreters, present a Cultural Orientation (CO) curriculum to clients in their native language. The established CO curriculum covers such topics as U.S. laws; resources, including public benefits; accessing healthcare and preventive health; employment; budgeting and personal finance; housing—tenants' rights and obligations; hygiene; safety and calling/interacting with the police; cultural adjustment and wellness; education; and other topics. The curriculum is supplemented by outside speakers from local service providers and organizations.

Teachers have the latitude to clarify and explain CO content and respond to client questions as part of their presentation of the curriculum.

Instructors will connect with other teachers, the ESL coordinator, and case management staff to provide updates on student attendance, to refer students for various assistance and services, and to support long term growth and cultural navigation.
